Summary: Toothless realizes how different his life would be without Hiccup. I don't own any thing please R&R

My life

I don't own anything

It was a warm and sunny day as my rider, Hiccup got out of bed and got outside.

"Hey Toothless want to go for a ride?" he asked, already putting a saddle on me. As he got on my back I took off towards the cove. When we got here Hiccup sat down and started to draw and I started to reflect on my life.

I finally started to realize how much my life was changed for the better by meeting Hiccup. If I hadn't met him I would still be all alone. I also probably would have been killed by the Vikings if he hadn't cut the ropes off of me all of those months ago. I was so grateful to Hiccup that I could never fully repay him. I mean I was practically bound to the hip with him. I counted him as my family. That means if he dies I will kill myself to join him. I can't imagine a world without him.

Glancing over I smiled and snuggled up to him
